
The Zapatista Movement and Mexico's Democratic Transition:
Mobilization, Success, Survival

María Inclán

María Inclán is Associate Professor (Asesora-Investigadora) in Political Science at the Center for Economic Research and Teaching (Centro de Investigación y Docencia Económicas, CIDE) in Mexico City. Her work has appeared in several academic journals, and she is the author of her book The Zapatista Movement and Mexico's Democratic Transition, Mobilization, Success, and Survival.

February 27th

4 - 5 : 30pm

HUM 281

What happens to insurgent social movements that emerge during a democratic transition but fail to achieve their goals? How influential are they? Are they able to survive their initial mobilizing boom?

In her recently published book, Professor Inclán analyzes the Zapatista movement's achievements and failures, considering their place in Mexico's democratic transition. Her study focuses on how social movements survive and decline, as well as how well electoral democracies respond to their demands.

Sponsored by the Department of International Relations, Department of Political Science, and the Department of Latina/Latino Studies
